

UNIT 14

NOUN CLAUSE

Like a noun, a noun clause is also used as a subject or an object. In other words, a noun clause is a clause used in the same way as a noun.

(a) Her presentation was convincing. (b) What she presented was convincing.	In (a): presentation is a noun. It is used as the subject of the sentence. In (b) what she presented is a noun clause. It is also used as the subject of the sentence. The noun clause has its own subject she and verb presented .
(c) I cannot understand her complaint . (d) I cannot understand what she complained .	In (c): complaint is a noun. It is the object of the verb understand . In (d): what she complained is a noun clause. It is the object of the verb understand .
WORDS USED TO INTRODUCE NOUN CLAUSES (1) question words: when, where, who, why, how, which, whom, what, whose (2) whether, if (3) that

NOUN CLAUSES WHICH BEGINS WITH A QUESTION WORD

QUESTION	NOUN CLAUSE	EXPLANATION
Where does he work? What time did she come?	(a) I do not know where he works . (b) Did you know what time she came .	In (a) where he works is the object of the verb know . You may not use question word order in a noun clause. Notice: does and did are used in questions but not in noun clauses.
Who helped you? What was wrong?	(c) Tell me who helped you . (d) I do not know what was wrong .	In (c) and (d): The word order is the same in both the question and the noun clause because who and what are the subjects in both.
Who are you? Whose book is that?	(e) I know who you are . (f) I know whose book that is .	In (e) and (f) you and that are the subjects, so they must be placed in front of the verb are and is in the noun clauses.
What did you give? How did she behave?	(g) What you gave makes me offended. (h) How she behaved is embarrassing.	In (g) and (h): What you gave and How she behaved are the subjects of the sentences. Notice: a noun clause takes a singular verb (e.g. -s and is)

NOUN CLAUSES WHICH BEGIN WITH WHETHER OR IF

YES/NO QUESTIONS	NOUN CLAUSES	EXPLANATION
Will she study? Did he come?	(a) I do not know whether she will study. (b) I wonder if he came.	When a yes/no question is changed to a noun clause, whether or if is used to introduce the noun clause. Whether is more acceptable in formal English, but if is quite common, especially in speaking.

NOUN CLAUSES WHICH BEGIN WITH THAT

STATEMENT	NOUN CLAUSES	EXPLANATION
Ted is a great artist He is a successful teacher	(a) I think that Ted is a great artist. (b) I think (that) he is a successful teacher.	In (a) and (b): that Ted is a great artist and that he is a successful teacher are noun clauses. They are the objects of the verb think . The word that , when used to introduce noun clauses, has no meaning in itself. It may be omitted.
She is good at mathematics	(c) That she is good at mathematics is surprising. (d) It is surprising that she is good at mathematics.	In (c): the noun clause is used as the subject of the sentence. In (d): the noun clause is used as the object of the sentence.

ADVERB CLAUSES

Adverb clauses are clauses which serve as adverb. They may be preceded by words showing time, cause and effect, opposition, and condition, as presented below.

(a) When we were in Jakarta, we attended a seminar. (b) We have to study hard because we will have an exam next week.		When we were in Jakarta is an adverb clause. It is a dependent clause. Therefore, it cannot stand alone and must be connected to an independent clause. When an adverb clause precedes an independent clause, as in (a), a comma is used to separate the clauses.
SUMMARY LIST OF WORDS USED TO INTRODUCE ADVERB CLAUSES
TIME	CAUSE AND EFFECT	OPPOSITION	CONDITION
after before when while as by the time since until as soon as whenever every time (that) the first time (time) the last time (that) the next time	Because now that since as as/so long as inasmuch as so that in order that	even though although though whereas while	if unless only if whether or not even if providing (that) provided (that) in case (that) in the event (that)

USING ADVERB CLAUSES TO SHOW CAUSE AND EFFECT

(a) Because he was sleepy, he went to bed. (b) Since he is not interested in soccer, he decided not to the stadium. (c) In as much as the two government leaders could not reach an agreement, the possibility for peace is still remote. (d) Because the weather is cold, we stayed home. (e) Because of the cold weather, we stayed home. (f) Due to the cold weather, we stayed home.		An adverb clause may precede or follow the independent clause. Since and in as much as mean because. Because of and due to are prepositions which are followed by a noun clause, while because introduces an adverb clause which is followed by a subject and verb.

OTHER WAYS OF EXPRESSING CAUSE AND EFFECT: SUCH THAT AND SO THAT

(a) Because the weather was nice, we went to the zoo. (b) It was such nice weather that we went to the zoo. (c) The weather was so nice that we went to the zoo	Examples (a), (b) and (c) have the same meaning.
(d) It was such good coffee that I had another cup. (e) It was such a foggy day that we could not see the road.	Suchthat encloses a modified noun: Such +adjective + noun + that
(f) The coffee is so hot that I cannot drink it. (g) He walked so quickly that I could not keep up with him	Sothat encloses an adjective or adverb: So + adjective/adverb+ that
(h) He made so many mistakes that she failed the exam.	So....that is used with many, few, much, and little. So +many/few/much/little+ noun+that

EXPRESSING PURPOSES: SO THAT AND IN ORDER TO

(a) I turned off the TV in order to enable my roommate to study in peace. (b) I turned off the TV so (that) my roommate could study in peace.	In order to expresses purpose, but it is not followed by a sentence. So that also expresses purpose. The word that is often omitted.

REDUCTION OF ADVERB CLAUSES TO MODIFYING PHRASES

Some adverb clauses may be changed to modifying phrases IF THE SUBJECT OF THE ADVERB CLAUSE AND THE SUBJECT OF THE MAIN CLAUSE ARE THE SAME. A modifying phrase, a reduction of an adverb clause, modifies the subject of the main clause. There are two ways to change adverb clauses into modifying phrases.
1. Omit the subject of the dependent clause and the be form of the verb. (a) ADVERB CLAUSE : While I was reading a novel, I was listening to music (b) MODIFYING CLAUSE: While reading a novel, I was listening to music
2. If there is no be form of a verb, omit the subject and change the verb to -ing. (a) ADVERB CLAUSE : Before I left for work, I had breakfast (b) MODIFYING CLAUSE: Before leaving for work, I had breakfast

CHANGING TIME CLAUSES TO MODIFYING PHRASES

(a) CLAUSE: Since Mary came to this country, she has made many friends. (b) PHRASE: Since coming to this country, Mary has made many friends.	Adverb clauses beginning with after, before, while, and since can be changed into modifying phrases.
(c) CLAUSE: After he (had) finished his homework, he went to bed. (d) PHRASE: After finishing his homework, he went to bed. (e) PHRASE: After having finished his	In (c), there is no difference in meaning between after he finished and after he had finished. There no difference in meaning between (d) and (e). A modifying phrase may follow the homework, he went to bed. (f) PHRASE: He went to bed after finishing his homework.	main clause, as in (f).

(g) While I was walking down the street, I ran into an old friend. (h) While walking down the street, I ran into an old friend. (i) Walking down the street, I ran into an old friend.	While is sometimes omitted without changing the meaning. (g), ((h), and (i) have the same meaning and show the idea of “during the same time.”

EXPRESSING CAUSE AND EFFECT RELATIONSHIPS IN MODIFYING PHRASES

(a) Because she needed some money to buy a note book, Ann cashed a check. (b) (b) Needing some money to buy a notebook, Ann cashed a check.	An –ing phrase is often at the beginning of a sentence gives the meaning of “because”. (a) and (b) have the same meaning. Because is not used in a modifying phrase. It is omitted, but the resulting phrase expresses a cause and effect relationship.
(c) Having seen that movie before, I do not want to go again. (d) Having seen that movie before, I did not want to go again	Having + past participle gives the meaning not only of “because” but also “before”.
(e) Because she was unable to afford a car, she bought a bicycle. (f) Being unable to afford a car, she bought a bicycle. (g) Unable to afford a car, she bought a bicycle.	A form of be in the adverb clause is often changed to being . The use of being makes the cause and effect relationship clear.

USING UPON +-ING IN MODIFYING PHRASES

(a) Upon reaching the age of 25, I got married. (b) When I reached the age of 25, I got married. (c) On reaching the age of 25, I got married.	Modifying phrases beginning with upon +-ing usually have the same meaning as adverb clauses introduced by when . (a) and (b) have the same meaning. Upon can be shortened to on , as in (c) without changing the meaning.

UNIT 16

PARALLEL STRUCTURE

One use of a conjunction is to connect words or phrases that have the same grammatical function in a sentence. This use of conjunctions is called parallel structure. The conjunctions used in this pattern are and, but, or, and nor.

(a) Steve and Joe are coming to dinner.	In (a): noun + and + noun
(b) Susan raised her hand and snapped her fingers.	In (b): verb + and + verb
(c) He is waving his arms and (is) shouting at us.	In (c): verb + and + verb (The second auxiliary may be omitted if it is the same as the first auxiliary
(d) These shoes are old but comfortable	In (d): adjective + but + adjective
(e) He wants to watch TV or (to) listen to some music.	In (e): infinitive + or + infinitive (the second to may be omitted)
(f) They must put the book on the table or the chair.	In (f): phrase or phrase

UNIT 17

CONDITIONAL SENTENCES

REAL CONDITIONS (POSSIBLY TRUE)

FUTURE TIME → type 1
If + subject + simple present tense, subject + will (can) + (verb in simple form) +V-1(s/es)(to indicate a fact)
e. g. If I have enough time, I will write to my parents every week If water is kept in a refrigerator, it becomes cool

UNREAL CONDITIONS (NOT TRUE)

PRESENT OR FUTURE TIME → type 2
If + subject + simple past tense, subject + would (could) + (verb in simple form)
e. g. If I had the time, I would go to the beach with you this weekend. Fact: (I don't have the time) (I'm not going to the beach with you) He would tell you about it if he were here. Fact: (He won't tell you about it.) (He's not here) If he didn't speak so quickly, you could understand him. Fact: (He speaks very quickly.) (You can't understand him).

PAST TIME → type 3
If + subject + past perfect, subject + would (could) + have + (verb in past participle)
e. g.: If we had known that you were there, we would have written you a letter. Fact: (We didn't know that you were there.) (We didn't write you a letter.) She would have sold the house if she had found the right buyer. Fact: (She didn't sell the house.) (She didn't find the right buyer.) If we hadn't lost our way, we would have arrived sooner. Fact: (We lost our way) (We didn't arrive sooner)

OMITTING IF

- (a) Were I you, I wouldn't do that.
 (b) Had I known, I would have told you.
 (c) Should anyone call, please take a message.

With were, had (past perfect), and should, sometimes if is omitted and the subject and verb are inverted.

In (a): Were I you = If I were you

In (b): Had I known = If I had known

In (c): Should anyone call = If anyone should call

* In the negative, not follows the subjects. It is not contracted with the auxiliary verb:

CORRECT: Had I not seen it with my own eyes, I wouldn't have believed it.

INCORRECT: Hadn't I seen it with my own eyes, ...

IMPLIED CONDITIONS

- (a) I would have gone with you, but I had to study. (implied condition: ...if I had not had to study)
 (implied condition: if I had not had to study)
 (b) I never would have succeeded without your help.
 (implied condition:if you had not helped me)
 (c) He ran; otherwise, he would have missed his bus.

Often the "if clause" is implied, not stated, as in (a), (b), and (c). Conditional verbs are still used in the "result clause."

Conditional verbs are often used following otherwise. In (c), the implied "if clause" is if she had not run.

MIXED TIME IN CONDITIONAL SENTENCES

The time in the "if clause" and the time in the "result clause" are often different. One clause may be in the present and the other in the past.

(a) TRUE : I did not eat breakfast several hours ago, so I am hungry now.

(b) CONDITIONAL : If I had not eaten breakfast several hours ago, I would not be hungry now.

(a) TRUE : He is not a good student. He did not study for the test yesterday.

(b) CONDITIONAL : If he were a good student, he would have studied for the test.

VERB FORMS FOLLOWING WISH

	VERB FORM IN "TRUE" SENTENCE	VERB FORM FOLLOWING WISH
A wish about the future	(a) She will not tell me. (b) He isn't going to be here. (c) She can't come tomorrow.	I wish (that) she would tell me. I wish he were going to be here. I wish she could come tomorrow.	Wish is used when the speaker wants reality to be different, to be exactly the opposite. Verb forms similar to those in conditional sentences are used. Notice the examples.
A wish about the present	(d) I don't know French. (e) It is raining right now. (f) I can't speak Japanese.	I wish I knew French. I wish it weren't raining right now. I wish I could speak Japanese.

Wish is followed by a noun clause. The use of that is optional. Usually it is omitted in speaking.

A wish about the past	(g) John didn't come. (h) Mary couldn't come.	I wish John had come . I wish Mary could have come .	* Sometimes in very informal speaking: I wish John would have come .
COMPARE: (a) We hope that they will come. (we do not know if they are coming) (b) We wish that they could come. (they are not coming)		The verb hope and wish are similar in meaning, but are not at all the same grammatically. Hope is used to indicate something that possibly happened or will happen, whereas wish is used to indicate something that definitely did not happen or will not happen.

USING WOULD TO MAKE WISHES ABOUT THE FUTURE

(a) It is raining. I wish it would stop . (I want it to stop raining.) (b) I'm expecting a call. I wish the phone would ring . (I want the phone to ring)	Would is usually used to indicate that the speaker wants something to happen in the future. The wish may or may not come true (be realized).
(c) It's going to be a good party. I wish you would come . (I want you to come.) (d) We're going to be late. I wish you would hurry . (I want you to hurry.)	In (c) and (d): I wish you would is often used to make a request.

USING AS IF/AS THOUGH

(a) It looks like rain. (b) It looks as if it is going to rain. (c) It looks as though it is going to rain. (d) It looks like it is going to rain. (informal)	Notice in (a): like is followed by a noun object. Notice in (b) and (c): as if and as though are followed by a clause. Notice in (d): like is followed by a clause. This use of like is common in informal English but is not generally considered appropriate in formal English. As if or as though is preferred. (a), (b), (c), and (d) all have the same meaning.
"TRUE" STATEMENT (e) He is not a child. (f) She did not take a shower with her clothes on. (g) He has met her. (h) She will be here.	VERB FORM AFTER AS IF/AS THOUGH - She talked to him as if he were a child. - When she came in from the rainstorm, she looked as if she had taken a shower with her clothes on. - He acted as though he had never met her. - She spoke as if she wouldn't be here.	Usually the idea following as if/as though is untrue In this case, verb usage is similar to that in conditional sentences. Notice the examples.

Subject + verb + as +(adjective/adverb) + as + (noun/pronoun)
(a) My book is as interesting as yours. (b) Kim sings as well as his sister. (c) James is not so tall as his brother.	An equal comparison shows that two entities are (are not) exactly the same. Occasionally, so is used instead of as before the adjective or adverb in negative comparisons, as in (c).
Subject +verb+ the same +(noun) + as + (noun/pronoun) Subject 1 and subject 2 +verb+ the same
(d) My house is the same height as his. (e) The coat is the same as mine. (f) Your book and my book are the same.	The same and the same as convey equal comparisons, as in (d), (e), and (f).
Subject + verb + different from + (noun/pronoun)
(g) My nationality is different from hers	The opposite of the same as is different from. Never use different than
Subject + verb + like + noun/pronoun Subject 1 and subject 2 +verb + alike
(h) The girl is like her sister (i) The girl and her sister are alike.	Like and alike are used in general comparisons. Like is followed by a noun/pronoun, whereas alike is not.

UNEQUAL COMPARISON

Subject + verb + adjective /adverb+ -er + than + noun/pronoun Subject + verb+ more/less+ adjective/adverb + than + noun/ pronoun
(a) An essay test is more difficult than a multiple choice test. (b) My room is narrower than yours. (c) She speaks English more fluently than I. (d) I visit my grandparents less frequently than she does.	More or less is used when the adjective or adverb has two or more syllables, -er is used when the adjective or adverb has only one syllable or two syllables ending in -y, -ow, and -er. A few adverbs are added with -er: faster, quicker, sooner, and later. Only the subject pronoun is used after than, as in (c) and (d).
Subject + verb + far/much + adjective /adverb+ -er + than + noun/pronoun Subject + verb+ far/much + more/less+ adjective/adverb + than + noun/ pronoun

(e) Andy's t-shirt is far more expensive than mine. (f) The movie I saw last night was much less interesting than the one on television (g) They dance much more gracefully than other teams.	Unequal comparisons can also be intensified by adding much or far before the comparative form,
